

Species 1 - Fig. 4 allegedly drawn to a first embodiment having an error detecting/correcting circuit and retransmission request interpreter(claims 5, 11 and 27);

Species 2 - Fig. 5 allegedly drawn to a second embodiment having an L-side data extracting section and a R-side extracting section (claims 13 and 16);

Species 3 - Fig. 6 allegedly drawn to a third embodiment having a L-R separator;

Species 4 - Fig. 7 allegedly drawn to a fourth embodiment wherein the headphone has a microphone and a microphone position detector;

Species 5 - Fig. 8 allegedly drawn to a fifth embodiment having an operating switch, a switch state detector and a player-side operating switch (claims 6, 14 and 22);

Species 6 - Fig. 9 allegedly drawn to a sixth embodiment having a voice recognition command interpreter (claims 7, 8, 15, and 23);

Species 7 - Fig. 10 allegedly drawn to a seventh embodiment having an battery level detector, a battery, a warning sound generator and a display device control section,(claims 9, 17 and 25); and

Species 8 - Fig. 11 allegedly drawn to an eighth embodiment having an error rate measuring unit and a electric field intensity measuring section (claims 10, 12, 18, 26 and 29).

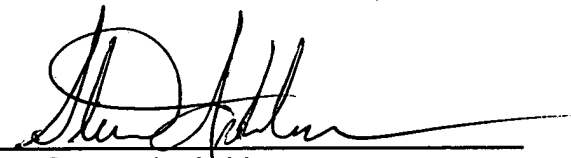

Applicant elects to prosecute Species 2, and claims 13 and 16, readable thereon, without traverse.

Please grant any extensions of time required to enter this response and charge any additional required fees to our deposit account 06-0916.

Respectfully submitted,

FINNEGAN, HENDERSON, FARABOW,
GARRETT & DUNNER, L.L.P.

Dated: January 27, 2006

By:
Steven L. Ashburn
Reg. No. 56,636